

Stopping the advancement of satellite radio would be a huge mistake. Who would not want perfectly clear stations to listen to and a wide variety of music. Fm radio wastes my time with stupid advertisements, lots of static and ridiculous disc jockeys who obviously say what they're told to say. XM lets you get the biggest variety of music, and channels where only the style of music you want to hear is played. I feel they listen to their listeners and our input is valued. XM also provides quality news broadcasts and the traffic and weather channels are helpful beyond description.
